Cincinnati Nature Center Announces Board of Director Changes

On September 23, 2009 Cincinnati Nature Center named Grant Cowan Chair of its Board of Trustees. Cowan, an Indian Hill resident and an attorney with Frost Brown Todd, LLC has served on the board for five years. Cincinnati Nature Center elected four new individuals to their Board of Trustees: Tucker Coombe, Graham Mitchell, Linda Parlin, and Elizabeth Staggenborg.

In addition, Cincinnati Nature Center proudly announced the election of two Honorary Trustees – Michael McGraw and Jane Stotts.

"Non-profit organizations like Cincinnati Nature Center would not be possible without the people behind the scenes who spend time and effort working to make everything happen. These two members have demonstrated their commitment for many years and we are incredibly grateful to them," said Bill Hopple, Executive Director at CNC.

McGraw has spent more than 20 years contributing to the leadership and success of CNC. He served on the Board of Trustees from 1987-1996 and Chairman for four years. He continues to serve on the Committee on Trustees. He and his family live in Indian Hill.

Stotts, CNC's volunteer historian, has been committed to researching, documenting and now nominating CNC's legacy for recognition in the National Register of Historic Places. Because of her outstanding research efforts, we know much more about the history of our lands including its owners and founders. Stotts is a resident of Blue Ash.
