SCHOOL PROGRAM PHILOSOPHY

Providing positive experiences in nature

Regardless of the lesson choice, our first priority is to make sure students feel comfortable and safe. Each day we hope to increase the comfort level students and adults have in natural settings.

Discovery first, discussion second

Students will be exposed to local ecosystems with hands-on activities and authentic materials. Their discoveries and questions will be tied back to lessons in school and the organisms that live in their region.

Small student to naturalist ratios

In order to provide hands-on experiences without harm to our local natural resources, small groups of 8-10 students per naturalist are key. This also allows us to follow student interests and provide personal attention.

Training for adults (teachers and caregivers)

Parents, teachers and other adults in the lives of students are the ones with the real power to expose children to nature on a regular basis. We provide ideas for how these adults can take children outside for learning opportunities.

What we appreciate from teachers who work with us:

- Coming prepared to enjoy and experience nature with their students
- Willingness to bring more than the minimum number of chaperones (if able)
- Open communication of any changes before the trip arrives
- Encouraging students to pack lunches with minimal waste
- Looking for more ways to become involved with Cincinnati Nature Center (trainings, schoolyard programs, membership, etc.)

teacher PROGRAMS

TRAININGS, PROGRAMS AND EDUCATOR DISCOUNTS

In an effort to deepen relationships with tristate teachers, Cincinnati Nature Center offers a variety of teacher programs. Contact Melissa Sabo for specific dates, times and topics at (513) 831-1711, ext. 138 or email msabo@cincynature.org. Subscribe to our teacher e-newsletter to receive updates or join our teacher Facebook group for natural history posts and program announcements.

Programs at Rowe Woods

Select programs at Cincinnati Nature Center are free to teachers. To find out which ones qualify, sign up for our teacher newsletter at here.

Teacher Trainings

Cincinnati Nature Center offers a two-three day training for elementary teachers each summer. Check the website for details on topic and dates for special summer workshops, or sign up for our teacher newsletter to be the first to hear about new programs. Customized nature-based trainings are also available at our location or yours for $90/hour for 12 participants. We offer scheduled trainings throughout the year, as well as shortened sessions for school or district in-services.

Teacher Memberships

All teachers who bring their students on a field trip to Cincinnati Nature Center will be offered a free individual membership (or a credit towards a higher membership level).

Pricing and Payment Information

Fees are due on the day of your program. If your school requires billing, please include a purchase order. A cancellation fee of $25 per scheduled date will be charged for schools canceling less than 45 days before their program. This does not apply to cancellations due to school closings, poor weather or dangerous road conditions.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: May I bring more students?

A: A low student/teacher ratio is crucial to accomplish educational objectives. Group limits take into account logistical concerns, including the number of educators available, the number of trails and learning stations and the size of classroom spaces. In order for your students to have the highest quality educational experience possible, we ask that you adhere to the stated class size limitations.

Q: Are scholarships available?

A: Schools with more than 60% of their students in the Federal Free Lunch Program qualify for scholarships. Amount of funding available varies each year, so apply early! For more information, call Melissa Sabo at (513) 831-1711, ext. 138.

Q: How does lunch work during our visit?

A: We encourage you and your students to pack lunches in reusable containers and lunch boxes that will travel to and from the Nature Center with you. Small groups will eat lunch at different times depending on the program requested.

Q: If a parent/guardian is a Nature Center member, do they still need to pay for their child to attend a field trip?

A: Since our field trips provide special benefits that students would not have the opportunity to experience without Nature Center group leaders, Nature Center members and nonmembers pay the same program fee.

Q: Is there a fee for adult chaperones?

Fees are program dependent. See program descriptions on page 3 for details. All adults will participate in a brief orientation at the beginning of the day and are encouraged to be active participants in the field trip.
